

Dear Colleagues

Now that the Easter break is behind us, it is time to start encouraging your top educators to apply for this year's round of Awards, including encouraging previous Citation recipients to develop their applications into a full Teaching Award application.

The 2022 Australian Awards for University Teaching nomination pack, will now be released on Monday 9 May 2022. In this newsletter, we have produced two resources for potential applicants. The first contains tips for writing a successful application. The second provides a variety of examples of good forms of evidence. Please encourage your potential applicants to make use of these valuable resources. Further information is provided below, as well as the key dates for this year.

Additionally, I encourage you to watch the 2021 Teacher of the Year, Professor Katerina Teawi as she shares her journey and provides inspiration to aspiring applicants.

The focus for my team in the next few months will be to deliver a series of briefing and professional development sessions. We will also be releasing a video series that will provide advice from past recipients to all future potential applicants. Further information and dates of sessions are forthcoming.

I am also pleased to announce that this year, we have 49 registered mentors from 21 institutions who have volunteered to support future applicants. We are grateful to these academics who are willing to support 2022 nominees, as well as those who informally support the nomination process within their own institutions, faculties, departments and schools.

We look forward to receiving your applications.

Regards,
Angela
